Advice on Good Manners in Public Places

It is important to behave well in public places, such as the supermarket and the shopping centre. So, what should and shouldn't we do there?

Firstly, we should have good manners at the supermarket. We shouldn't open the packages of any products freely. We shouldn't throw our rubbish everywhere. Moreover, we should not shout at the customers or the cashiers in bad temper. We should put back the groceries neatly on the shelves so the other customers can take the groceries conveniently. We should also push the shopping carts slowly and carefully so we won't crash into the other customers. Furthermore, we should pay for the things we want to buy before we leave the supermarket.

We shouldn't behave badly in the shopping mall either. We shouldn't run on the escalators so that we won't bump into the other people in the shopping mall. We shouldn't steal others' personal belongings. Apart from that, we shouldn't jump in the lift. We should take the lift when we have heavy luggage, instead of using the escalators. We should help people to carry their heavy shopping bags if they need help. On the other hand, we should hold the door for people who are in need, such as small children and the elderly.

To sum up, we should behave well in all public places and try to learn from people who behave well. Having good manners enable us to build up a good and professional image. If you have good manners, others will learn from you, and we can make this world a better place. Now, you've learnt how to behave well. I hope you can also do it.
