How to Behave in Public Places

It is important to behave well when we are in public places. Otherwise, people will think that you are a strange person. Here are some rules to follow in two public places – the supermarket and on the bus.

Firstly, we should have good manners in the supermarket. We shouldn't run when pushing the shopping cart because we might hurt other people. We shouldn't shout at the staff because it is very impolite. We should wait patiently at the cashier. We also should put the shopping cart back to the right place after shopping because we need to keep the supermarket tidy.

Secondly, we should behave well on the bus too. We shouldn't run or play noisily because we could hurt ourselves and disturb other passengers. We shouldn't smoke too because it will make the bus smelly. We should talk on the phone softly so we don't disturb others. We also need to offer our seats to people who are in need - old people or pregnant women.

To sum up, we should follow the rules in all public places and behave politely. Then, other people will think that you are a kind and nice person. Your family, friends and teachers will be proud of you.
