An Unforgettable Day

Last Friday's school recess time, Mary and Tom wanted to go to Ma On Shan Country Park because they wanted to have a nice picnic during the weekends. When they got home, they packed their bags and were ready to set off on the next day.

On the next day, Mary and Tom took the bus to the country park. However, when they got there, they realized they took the wrong bus and went to the wrong place! They were panicking when they saw a hiker. Mary asked the hiker, 'Excuse me. Do you know the fastest way to travel from here to Ma On Shan Country Park?' 'Well...I do know a way. You can go to the country park by bus. It's ten kilometres from here to there,' the hiker answered clearly.

When Mary and Tom arrived at the bus stop, they were shocked because the queue was as long as a dragon! Mary and Tom both decided not to take the bus as it would take a long time. Mary preferred to take the MTR because travelling by MTR was convenient and cheap. Tom wanted to travel by taxi so that they could have a comfortable trip. They both insisted on their thoughts. As a result, they started to quarrel. After a while of arguing, Mary said, 'Sorry, Tom. I shouldn't argue with you. Even if I don't like your choice, I should respect you.' 'Me too. I'm very sorry,' Tom apologized. They decided to go by taxi and went to the country park successfully. They had a great picnic together.

In the end, they went back home. Although they were as exhausted as a deflated balloon, they were delighted because they had a wonderful day. They also learnt a valuable lesson – respect others’ opinions.
