Going to the country park

Last Sunday morning, Mary and Tom were at Kennedy Town. They wanted to go to Ma On Shan Country Park but they didn't know the way.

Luckily they met a hiker. 'How far is it from here to Ma On Shan Country Park?' asked Mary. 'How can we get there?' 'It's a long way. It's ten kilometers far,' said the kind hiker. 'You can go there by bus. The bus stop isn't far. It's over there.' The hiker pointed at a bus stop with a lot of people queueing. 'Oh, no! There's so many people!' exclaimed Tom. 'We'll never get to the country park at this rate!'

'Yes,' replied Mary. 'I don't enjoy travelling by bus because I hate waiting for the bus.' 'Let's go by taxi,' said Tom. 'It's faster and more comfortable.' So, they went to the country park by taxi.

Surprisingly, the fee of the ride is over two hundred dollars! 'I'd rather take the bus instead,' said Mary.

Today they've learnt a great lesson: Look before you leap!
